

Leading Canadian Law Firm Stikeman Elliott Lays Foundation for the Future with iManage Work Product Management

Firm selects iManage as best choice for its document and email management needs

CHICAGO – November 14, 2017 – iManage, the company dedicated to transforming how professionals work, today announced that Stikeman Elliott LLP — one of Canada’s leading business law firms — has selected iManage as its firm-wide Work Product Management platform.

After conducting a comprehensive internal review of its business processes and work product management needs, the firm sought a world-class, fully integrated solution. The solution had to address firm members changing needs and expectations around how technology can better support document and email management. iManage delivered a platform that fully meets the ever-increasing needs for governance and protection of sensitive data.

“iManage gives us the capabilities we need to continue to deliver the highest level of service to our clients,” said Jean McLeod, Chief Operating Officer, Stikeman Elliott. “iManage enables our professionals to work intuitively regardless of device or location. We see it as making ourselves future ready.”

Key factors in Stikeman Elliott’s decision encompassed the modern, intuitive user experience of iManage Work 10 and its built-in smart features that actively help lawyers work more efficiently. The firm also valued the integrated security management and powerful machine learning-based threat protection from iManage Threat Manager. Additionally, iManage Records Manager will support the firm’s information governance requirements. iManage Records Manager automates the management of physical and electronic content throughout the work product lifecycle — from creation to appropriate disposition of records when no longer required.

“Global professional services firms such as Stikeman Elliott expect their mission critical systems keep pace with market changes and capitalize on the latest technological innovations,” said Dan Carmel, Chief Marketing Officer, iManage. “With iManage, Stikeman Elliott is using the latest innovations in user centric software to work, increasing the firm’s ability to respond to its clients’ changing demands.
