Today's modern professionals are required to manage and access a variety of content to deliver critical work for their clients. This information is often located in disparate locations including local hard drives, network drives and even cloud storage. Many organizations respond to this challenge by implementing document management systems to improve productivity. These systems are often cumbersome, difficult to navigate and get in the way professionals want to work. Most often these tools are abandoned and have little or no user adoption.

Increase productivity with iManage Work FileShare

iManage Work FileShare provides modern professionals an easy way to access content within the iManage Work document and email management platform. By simply mapping a network drive letter to the iManage Work File Server, users can access content directly from their desktop with Windows Explorer, as well as common Open and Save dialogs used by most applications.

Selecting the mapped network drive letter, displays all client files, matters, engagements and projects you are working on. The content is displayed as folders and users can perform the same action they can on a document stored on any other drive such as Open, Copy and Send.

Access files stored in iManage Work through familiar Windows Explorer interface

The simplicity of accessing content with iManage FileShare fosters and reinforces best practices and the use of iManage Work. Non-integrated applications can manage content in iManage Work and information is no longer stored in random folders but is now part of the world-class iManage Work document and email management system that ensures no data loss, strict security policy enforcement, meta-data scrubbing and extensive audit trail. iManage FileShare zero-footprint install requires less maintenance investment in updating individual client images, and as result, reduces total cost of ownership.
